DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 13-15, & 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weinberg et al., (U.S. Patent number 5974572).

4. As per claim 13, Weinberg et al., (Weinberg) teaches (col. 3, lines 1-3) a test generation method that allows the site to be stressed according to typical usage patterns. He also teaches (col. 3, lines 6-8) a method that automatically generates test scenarios based on information stored within a server access log file. He thus teaches the limitations pertain to integrating a system under test into the production environment. He also teaches (col. 3, lines 17-19) that a software module implements a scenario generation process that preserves the load distribution represented within the log file. He does not explicitly disclose using live TCP-based traffic to generate load on the system under test. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to realize that he would use live TCP-based traffic to generate load on the system under test. This is because He teaches as stated above a software module that implements a scenario generation process that preserves the load distribution represented within the log file. He therefore utilizes a log file which is a log file commonly generated by commercially-available Web servers (col. 3, lines 9-10). He therefore also uses live TCP-based traffic to generate load on the system under test.

5. As per claim 14, He teaches (col. 18, lines 47-50) a web scanning process, the Astra core communicates over the Internet with one or more web server applications (Web servers), which make up the Web site. He thus teaches a request-response production environment.

6. As per claim 15, He teaches (col. 18, lines 52-55) that the Web servers may run on a single computer, run on multiple computers located at a single geographic location (the location of the client computer) or run on multiple computers that are geographically distributed. He thus teaches web hosting environment.

7. As per claim 17, He teaches (col. 3, lines 17-19) that a software module implements a scenario generation process that preserves the load distribution represented within the log file. He thus logs TCP packets from the live TCP-based traffic.

Allowable Subject Matter

8. Claims 1-12 are allowed.

Art Unit: 2114

9. Claim 16 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
